

Women

RONNIE SAUNDERS, Society Editor

PICTORIAL

Presidents at Play

Come September, club presidents throughout Torrance will grab gavels, pack procedure books and take off on a never-ending whirl of committee meetings, board meetings, and general meetings which will continue full-speed until they grind to an abrupt halt sometime next May or June.

Between adding ideas to agendas, talking on a telephone that never ceases to ring, and making like a mother to her own family, the busy club president will look longingly at the bag of golf clubs or untouched sewing machine and promise herself wistfully that she will take time out for play "when things slow down."

From September to June, she can be assured that "things" won't be slowing down. Because the club president is the busiest gal in town. But come Summer, the meetings are fewer, the phone rings a little less frequently, and the wistful winter wish may at last come true.

In the cycle of the club calendar, there is a time for meeting and a time for doing. And August is a time for play.

Playtime Pursuits

At play with her children is Mrs. Douglas Hedde, upper left, president of Jaycettes, who takes time out to push Mark, 21-months, and Doug Jr. on backyard swing.

Practicing putting form is Mrs. J. G. Louvier, upper right, president of the Torrance Woman's Club, who welcomes an opportunity to try her skill at Sea Aire park.

Sewing an ensemble to wear to meetings this fall is Mrs. William Faulds, center, president of the Torrance Junior Woman's Club.

Flower arranging adds pleasure to an August day for Mrs. Cecil Powell, lower left, president of the Lioness Club.

Packing luggage in the car is Mrs. Clarence Van Lingen, lower right, president of Little Company of Mary Hospital Auxiliary, who takes advantage of unhurried summer hours to take off on weekend trips to the mountains.

Flower arranging picture is by Mitchell Major. Other photos are by William Schell Jr.

